Ped Bike Committee has the brilliant idea to bring brightly colored paints to Lebanon's crosswalks, rather than the typical white strips that blend in with snow and salt, or are otherwise a little less visible to drivers. Some examples are here: <https://www.transpo.com/roads-highways/materials/pavement-marking-material/crosswalks>

There are also some more involved examples here <https://www.smartcitiesdive.com/news/creative-crosswalks-street-art-meets-safety-enhancement/526474/>

The type of paint and application method required in NH is more stringent than in other environments, so I don't know that doing detailed art is much of an option, but different colors in large patterns could be. DPW is figuring that out with Ped Bike. They are hoping for A/C input, and offer an invitation to participate in the process.
